FILIPINOS BANKING ON WOOD'S NEW DEBT PLAN

Future Precarious If Limit Is Not Raised As Proposed

OSMENA RESIGNS

Defection Tangles Political Situation In Islands

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Manila, Feb. 1.—The tangled situation in Philippine politics has been further complicated by the resignation of the Speaker, Mr. Sergio Osmena as president of the Nacionalista party, which was accepted a few days ago. At present no one is willing to predict what new party aligments may take place, or whether General Wood's program to rehabilitate the finances of the islands will be enacted into law.

Senator Quezon apparently has fully committed himself to the plan to form a new party. He is now attempting to obtain the support of Gen. Aguinaldo, leader of the insurrection against the United States. Aguinaldo's backing is thought to be essential to Mr. Quezon, as the former still has an immense following among Filipinos of all classes, and particularly the veterans of the revolution.

There has been some talk as forcing Mr. Osmena into retirement and bringing Mr. Quezon back to the Nacionalistas, in a final endeavor to prevent a split in the party which has ruled the islands for so long a time. The general opinion seems to be, however, that Mr. Quezon has gone too far to return to the Nacionalistas now, even if he wished to do so.

Every indication, however, points to a hot fight at the coming elections. What is felt to be of more importance, however, is the fate of Governor General Wood's project to increase the debt limit of the islands to $73,000,000 (U.S. Currency). All who are in touch with the financial situation state that if this is not adopted, the islands will be in a precarious position.

POLICE ABSOLVED OF CHARGES OF BEATING CHINESE

Charges of mistreatment at the hands of police officers which were made by two Chinese on trial for armed robbery and burglary were held to be without foundation by Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Li of the Mixed Court yesterday, when the two accused were sentenced to two years' imprisonment each on the burglary charge.

The accused had previously declared in court that confessions regarding a robbery committed at 1009 Markham Road on December 31 were obtained from them only after they had been hung up and beaten at the police station. Police evidence was to the effect that one of the men, when placed under arrest, picked up a pair of scales and stabbed himself in the face, afterward alleging that the wound had been made by the Chapel policeman who arrested him. The other declarations regarding illtreatment at the hands of a foreign police officer were denied and the Court after going into the matter completely absolved the officer in question.

DECORATIONS AT WASHINGTON BALL WILL BE UNIQUE

Town Hall Auditorium To Be Transformed To Aspect Of Colonial Estate

While rehearsals are going forward for the historical dance pageant that is to be a spectacular feature of the George Washington ball at the Town Hall on the evening of February 22, the committee that has in hand the decorations for the event are carrying into effect an elaborate plan by which the big auditorium of the Town Hall will be marvellously transformed into the appearance of a pretentious Colonial estate.

An exact reproduction of the home of George Washington is being arranged and this will be erected in the auditorium. The lawn in front of the structure will be the dancing floor and the whole illusion is to be carried out with the aid of an intricate and artistic system of lighting effects.

Aside from the dance pageant several other novel entertainment features are to be presented in the course of the evening. The pageant of dances will be illustrative of several historical periods of American life and in the presentation of the dances the utmost pains have been taken to make them historically exact and realistic, both in the forms of the various dances to be given and particularly in the matter of the costumes of those who will take part. A number of general rehearsals at which the entire pageant will be given are being arranged.

As has been announced before, the number of invitations to the ball has been limited to 1,000 and as many applications already have been received those who intend to go to the ball and have not yet applied for invitations are advised to act without delay.

Applications for invitations are being received by Capt. V. Olsen, No. 30 Fearon Road, Mr. F. J. Raven, American Oriental Bank and Miss Lillian May Wilkinson, seecretary to Mr. E. S. Cunningham, American Consul-General, at the Consulate.

Daily rehearsals of the various dances have been in progress for some time at the Palace Hotel under the direction of Madame Koukocheff. Those who are to take part in the pageant are as follows: Polka, Mrs. L. K. Taylor, Mrs. W. Christian, Miss Dorothy Seifert and Mrs. C. F. Franklin and Messrs. Savale, Burroughs, E. Meyerink and S. F. Smith; the Gavotte, Mrs. Gattrell, Miss Allene Thornburgh, Miss Gretchen Fitkin and Miss Madeline Harris and Messrs. John Washburn, A. D. Barnes, E. D. Alexander and Gattrel; the Quadrille, Miss Joyce Merriman, Miss Edna Leo Booker, Mrs. F. W. Schlobohm and Miss Ruth Weiss and Messrs. Heinzerling, Schlobohm, Potter and Bourne and the Minuet, Mrs. J. Gregg, Miss Fern Nelson, Miss Vera Bernhardt and Miss Margaret Powell and Messrs. Hale, Whitescarver, Smith and Campbell.

Hongkong Government Yields To Demands Of Seamen For Recognition

Will Permit Registration Of Union With Stipulation That It Must Be "Under Different Name;" Companies Make Offer Of Wage Increase

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Hongkong, Feb. 10.—The position at the end of the fourth week of the seamen's strike is as follows: One hundred and seventy steamers, the majority of which are British, aggregating over 250,000 tons are tied up. Ocean-going traffic is partially stopped and river traffic excepting junk trade, is completely paralysed, inflicting colossal losses on the ship owners, merchants and producers in South China.

Transport workers are conveyed in Government motor-lorries and are working under armed naval and military guards. British and American subjects from the civilian community are enrolled as special constables and patrol the waterfront, while Indian soldiers patrol the Kowloon suburbs.

The prices of commodities have risen but a shortage of essentials in Hongkong is not apprehended, owing to the prohibition of the export of flour, rice and coal except by special licence. The shortage of rice, coal and kerosene oil in Canton is causing apprehension amongst the Chinese authorities and the accumulation of silk cargoes at Shameen is embarrassing producers and exporters.

The hotels are full of marooned travellers and ship's officers.

Owing to the strikers' campaign of intimidation of transport workers, the Government raided and closed altogether the headquarters of four guilds. Strikers numbering about 10,000 have proceeded to Canton whereto the venue of the negotiations has shifted.

A public meeting of Chinese merchants and all the leading Chinese associations resulted in a delegation being sent to Canton to interview the strikers who stipulate as conditions precedent to negotiations the reinstatement of the Union's headquarters at Hongkong and immunity from punishment of any member of the Union.

While promising the registration of the Union, but under a different name, the Government insists on the necessity of the strikers' publicly disclaiming attempts to intimidate the transport workers and other workers in Hongkong, undertakes to give a safe conduct to the strikers' delegates who are going to Hongkong with a view to negotiating and offers to appoint a board of arbitration consisting of two Europeans and two Chinese not connected with the Government or with shipping interests, and presided over by a Government officer with judicial experience.

The allegations that the Canton Government is morally supporting the strikers is denied by the Canton Times which is the mouth piece of the Canton Government.

The suggestion is being discussed in responsible quarters that white crews should replace the Chinese on all ocean-going steamers with terminals at United Kingdom ports.

Hongkong, Feb. 10.—The shipowners have decided to renew their offer of increases in the seamen's wages on the following scale: river steamers, between 15 and 25 percent; coasting, 12 percent; Java, Pacific and European lines, 7½ percent; Australian, 10 percent.

While the shipping strike situation at Hongkong seemingly remains unchanged, no further disquieting moves have been made by marine workers here in the past 24 hours and, in fact, it is known that several hundred Chinese workers, Ningpo men in the main, have been recruited in Shanghai to go South with the purpose of manning passenger liners held in the Crown Colony port.

According to reports that bear every evidence of authenticity no less than 400 Chinese are leaving this morning for Hongkong on a vessel specially chartered by one big shipping agency. These Chinese, mostly Ningpo men, are to man one of the larger ships that has been held up by the strike at Hongkong. The men are to be landed directly aboard the ship they are to man or may be kept on junks outside of the harbor until the vessel is ready to sail, when they will be taken aboard.

Telegrams received by shipping companies here from Hongkong yesterday said there is no change in the situation there with regard to the strike of seamen and cargo coolies.

The China Mail Steamship Company has not yet succeeded in securing a full complement for the China, but it is believed that the number of men needed, 160, will be obtained within the next few days. The company is particularly hard hit because of the fact that all of its fleet will soon be tied up at Hongkong. In ad-

Promises Cordial Reception To Americans Who Visit Rome

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Rome, Feb. 9.—Cardinal O'Connor, who arrived in Rome on Monday morning too late to take part in the election of the new Pope, had an audience of His Holiness today.

In response to a request for a message to the American people, the Sovereign Pontiff asked Cardinal O'Connor to tell the American nation that during his whole life he has always greatly admired this young and vigorous people:

"I have read much," His Holiness continued, "about America, and I have often wished to visit that great country, but that, of course, now will be impossible. I shall however be happy to give at Rome a very warm welcome to the Americans who come to visit me. Tell the American people that I send them my sincere and affectionate blessing.

"The Washington Conference has done much for the peace of the world, and it is my ardent desire to contribute to the establishment of peace and harmony amongst the nations. America has shown that she was not selfish both during the war and after. May God bless the great American nation."

BRITISH CABINET DIVIDED IN PLAN TO CUT EXPENSES

Geddes' Report Arouses Bitter Discussions Among Ministers

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 9.—The anxiously awaited report of Sir Eric Geddes' Retrenchment Committee will be published tomorrow.

There has been fierce discussion in the Press at the Government's delay in the publication, which is attributed to the activities of Cabinet ministers and revising committees, in whittling down certain recommendations.

It is believed that the latter have rejected £20,000,000, or one fifth of the suggested savings. The departments most prominently discussed are those of the fighting services, and education; it is declared that the cuts recommended in these departments are respectively £48,000,000 and £13,000,000.

The Cabinet is reported to be divided on the subject of cuts in the fighting services, and the exact amount of the savings accepted will be unknown until the estimates appear.

Collapsible Boat Carries Four Passengers In Test

A COLLAPSIBLE boat, which Sir Curtis Lampson, noted English explorer, is taking on his new expedition to Africa, was tested recently in the canal at Camberwell, England. The little boat, which can easily be carried by one man, held four average-sized men during the test. The photos show the boat as folded and carried on the march and the four men in the boat during its test.

Famine Committee Here Laying Plans To Combat Death Menace In North

Customs Surplus Allocation Gives Kiangsu $396,000 For Relief Work; Local Body To Supervise Aid Also In Anhwei And Chekiang

With the receipt of word that the Customs Surtax Commission at Peking has allocated nearly $1,000,000 of the $2,000,000 available for famine relief in Kiangsu, Chekiang and Anhwei, the Chinese-Foreign Famine Relief Committee here, which has charge of the distribution for those three provinces, is framing its campaign against the wave of death which is threatening to sweep over the smitten districts.

Road-building, canal improvement and other useful labor projects are planned in connection with the giving of relief to famine victims and purchases of grain are now being made in Manchuria through the Peking and Tientsin offices of the Famine Relief Commission.

In the division of the Maritime Customs surplus Kiangsu and Anhwei receive the largest shares, 18 percent each of the total, or $396,000 for each province. Twelve provinces shared in the allocations, which are as follows:

	Pct.
Kiangsu	18	$396,000
Anhwei	18	396,000
Hunan	11	242,000
Shantung	10	220,000
Hupei	8	176,000
Chekiang	8	176,000
Kweichow	7	154,000
Szechuen	6	132,000
Shensi	5	110,000
Honan	3	66,000
Kiangsi	3	66,000
Kansu	3	66,000

NEED IS URGENT

That there is urgent need of immediate aid for the sufferers in Kiangsu and Anhwei is plainly shown in reports from foreign and Chinese investigators received by the relief committee here.

In the Yencheng and Funing districts to the North there are over 40,000 people who will starve to death unless help is given. The condition of the "tsao-min," or salt makers of the Yencheng district is described as particularly pitiable. Here there have been three successive years of the locust plague and with the non-fertility of the land making the raising of rice impossible the suffering has become intense.

In the Taichow district telegraphic reports state that the section from Taichow to Shinghwa is under water—waist deep in places. All fields are inundated and many houses are down. About fifteen percent of the populace in all the small villages are described as famine-stricken.

In the Hwai Valley region of Anhwei conditions are extremely bad, as previous reports have shown. The Chinese-Foreign Famine Relief Committee has made allocations of $200,000 to the Anhwei famine regions and further relief is planned with the money received from the Customs surplus. Much of the relief will be in the form of grain and where possible labor on useful projects will be started.

ROAD IS PLANNED

One of the labor projects for this province is the building of a road from Chinkiang to Ton Shui, linking up Chinkiang and Nanking. Famine labor will be employed and grain provided up to about $50,000.

Under the committee's supervision aid is being given in the widening and deepening of canals to carry the flood water off to the sea, one condition being that two-thirds of the total cost of the work be made up by the Chinese.

There are large areas where conditions are so serious that immediate relief has to be given and the committee is now sending supplies of grain to the Taichow and Yencheng districts.

The Customs Surtax Commission at the time of dividing the sums to be devoted to relief in the various provinces published a list of its findings. These included the stipulation that the funds received should be used for relief of suffering from calamity due to natural causes; that there be no distinction in relief distribution owing to religious belief; that relief should as far as possible be given in connection with labor projects of permanent benefit to the community; that international supervision be maintained in distribution of relief.

Mr. Tang Tsung-yu and Mr. D. W. Edwards were appointed to serve as Chinese and foreign secretaries and Mr. Yun Pao-hui and Mr. L. de Luca as Chinese and foreign treasurers of the Commission.

It was also stipulated that the balance of the surplus remaining after the allocations to the provinces mentioned above be devoted to relief work in Chihli and to supplementing relief in other provinces where funds are insufficient and to expenses for the auditors, who are Messrs. Thomson Bros. and Sodman.

ULSTERITES ARM 5,000 TO DEFEND BOUNDARY

Northern Government Is Preparing Strong Defense

ALL WIRES SILENT

Raids May Have Been Due To Sinn Fein Misunderstanding.

(Reuter's Service)

London, Feb. 9.—The Irish Free State bill was read in the House of Commons today for the first time. The second reading of the bill will take place on February 16.

London, Feb. 9.—The day passed without news of further happenings in Ulster either of raids or of reprisals. The Northern Government is taking most active measures of self-defence. Five thousand armed special constables are holding the frontier and repair gangs are busy restoring telegraph communication between Belfast and Enniskillen, which the raiders cut last night.

This may explain the dearth of news for the trouble is not yet finished, as appears from a message received this evening to the effect that five special constables and four British soldiers were kidnapped at Monaghan today by members of the Irish Republican Army.

The condemned men in Derry jail whose execution had been fixed for today, and which according to Mr. Collins precipitated the Sinn Fein raids in Ulster, are three in number, including the warder concerned in the attempted escape of Sinn Fein prisoners from that jail early in December, when a warder was murdered and a policeman was beaten, bound and chloroformed.

The reprieve of these men was officially announced in Ireland on Tuesday evening. One of the sentences has been commuted to a penal servitude for life, and the others to fifteen years penal servitude.

The news of the reprieve was apparently unknown when the raids were carried out.

AWARD TLS. 950 IN DAMAGE SUIT BROUGHT BY GIRL

Damages to the amount of Tls. 950 were awarded Miss Geraldine Ehmann by a jury in the British Supreme Court yesterday afternoon at the conclusion of the suit brought by her against Messrs. C. S. Barraclough and O.S.B. Rowe as a result of a motor car accident which occurred on Armistice Day.

The total amount sued for by the plaintiff was Tls. 1,985, of which Tls. 1,500 were asked as damages in respect of injury and nervous shock suffered when her ricsha was struck and overturned by Mr. Rowe's car, driven by Mr. Barraclough, on Bubbling Well Road.

Testimony was given at the concluding hearing by the defendants, by Mr. J. J. Keegan and Mr. Kingdon. Mr. Rowe made indignant denial of the allegations of counsel for the plaintiff that defendants were under the influence of liquor and that he had endeavored to mislead Miss Ehmann as to Mr. Barraclough's address.

The case was presided over by Judge Peter Grain and Mr. P. W. Goldring appeared for the plaintiff, while Mr. K. E. Newman defended.

Dr. Yen Explains Shantung Treaty

(Eastern News Agency)

Peking, Feb. 9.—Dr. W. W. Yen, Acting Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, today had an audience at the Waichiaopu with representatives of public bodies here and made an explanation in detail to them regarding the Shantung question for the purpose of clearing away misunderstandings on their part. Meanwhile, the Waichiaopu has despatched a telegram to the three Chinese delegates at Washington instructing them to return home. According to the authorities of the Waichiaopu, Dr. Hu Wei-teh, Chinese Minister to Japan, is returning home because of his illness.

JAPAN TO CUT ARMY; VICTORY FOR LIBERALS

Minister Admits Necessity For "Curtailing Forces"

PEOPLES' DEMAND

Change Of Attitude Attributed To Washington Parley

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, Feb. 3.—What must be regarded as one of the most interesting developments in the present session of the Diet is the War Minister's admission of the necessity to curtail the military forces.

Replying to a question in the Lower House, General Yamanashi said that the Government was most seriously considering a curtailment of the army without sacrificing its efficiency.

This pledge given on the eve of the introduction of a Kokuminto resolution to reduce the land forces must be understood to be most significant of the solicitude of the War Office and General Staff to respond as far as possible to what is evidently a popular demand, and to show that they are no longer blind to the new situation.

PUBLIC ALIENATED

The extreme conservation of the War Office has for some time past tended to alienate public opinion, which tendency became particularly noticeable after the close of the Russian War, and since the European conflict ended has grown into a feeling bitterly antagonistic to the military authorities. To this feeling it seems evident from the Minister's announcement that the military leaders are no longer indifferent.

There can be no doubt that the announcement will be received with marked satisfaction in many quarters, where a very real disappointment was felt at the failure of the Washington conference to effect any limitation of land armaments, and where the initiative of the Kokuminto in this direction has had a very hearty endorsement.

Side by side with the War Minister's statement, however, must be placed his remark in the House of Peers, a remark which shows that he and those he represents are as conservative and unyielding as ever. Replying to a question on the temporary assumption of either of the national defense portfolios by a civilian, General Yamanashi expressed himself as strongly opposed to that arrangement, basing his stand on the provision in the Imperial Constitution which allows the Minister of either War or the Navy to approach the Throne without consulting his colleagues in the Cabinet. Called in Japanese ibaku joso, this privilege which is peculiar to the heads of the two departments of national defense, is technically understood to be the outcome of the Imperial prerogative of supreme command of the Army and the Navy. Broadly speaking, this privilege may be exercised at any time, but during Prince Ito's regime it was generally understood to come into force only in time of war.

UNKNOWN PROVISION

The provision itself was familiar to special students of the Constitution, but practically unknown to the general public, who were much surprised at the time of the first Saionji cabinet to see published in the Official Gazette an ordinance entitled Military Ordinance No. 1. It was not the content, so much as the form that attracted attention and it was at once realised that the then War Minister, General Terauchi, had used in time of peace a privilege, which no Minister had dared to use in the lifetime of Prince Ito, and that the Cabinet as a whole was powerless against the military clique.

Since that occasion the Army authorities have had frequent recourse to this form of ordinance, but their example has not, except on one or two occasions, been followed by the heads of the sister service.

The reply of General Yamanashi, based on the precedent established by the late Count Terauchi, is generally regretted as seriously offsetting the favorable impression made on people's minds by his promise in the Lower House to put into effect such curtailment of the land forces as circumstances warrant.

Tokio, Feb. 4.—The attitude of the War Minister, as indicated by his opposition to the assumption of the national defense portfolios by a civilian as a breach of the special constitutional privilege accorded to the service ministers continues to hold the attention of the political thinkers of the country, who do not, however, regard it as wholly representative of the opinion held by military men throughout the country.

It is a well-known fact that when the question came up of Mr. Hara's taking over the Naval portfolio during the temporary absence of Admiral Baron Kato in Washington, it was due to the good offices of General Tanaka, the former Minister of War, that the opposition of the present holder of that office was overcome and a Cabinet crisis averted.

This fact alone is regarded as sufficient evidence to show that all military men are not of the ultra-conservative type, but that there are some with much broader ideas and a more progressive outlook.

How far the influence of the ultra-conservative group extends is not easy to estimate, but the fact that General Tanaka in his offer to mediate in the dispute between the two sections of the Cabinet must have had the endorsement of Prince Yamagata, leads to the conclusion that the power of these irreconcilables is limited.

Hongkong Will Recognize Union

dition to the China, the Nile is now there and the Nanking, which left here yesterday will be tied up if the strike does not come to an end before her arrival. All of the seamen on board the Nanking, it is said, have pledged themselves to join the strike when they get to Hongkong.

The Admiral Line steamer, Bay State, which is arriving here today from Hongkong, is bringing no cargo at all from that port. Most of the cargo ordinarily picked up at Hongkong, it is said, comes from the outlying districts such as Canton, etc. and owing to the strike there is no means of transportation from these districts.

Boats from Saigon are bringing in large quantities of rice to Hongkong. Not only the Hongkong-Calcutta-Saigon service, but the Hongkong-Calcutta freight services of two companies are unaffected by the strike. The Admiral line has just moved one of its freighters from Hongkong to Saigon, while another is scheduled to leave Hongkong on February 13 for Singapore, Java and Saigon.

The Golden State arrived in Manila yesterday. Instead of proceeding directly to Hongkong the Golden State will remain in Manila until February 16, when it will only pass through Hongkong for a day to pick up passengers. In the ordinary course of events, the Golden State would remain five days in Hongkong.

MANY IN TRIBUTE TO MEMORY OF MISS COPPOCK

A gathering which numbered over 250 assembled at Martyrs' Memorial Hall at the Chinese Y.M.C.A. Thursday evening to pay honor to the late Miss Grace L. Coppock, of the National Committee of the Y. W. C. A., at the memorial services arranged by the women's organisation.

The service opened with prayers after which tribute was paid to the work accomplished by Miss Coppock in China, by Dr. Cheng Ching-yi, Miss Fan Ju-yung, Miss Grace Yang, Mrs. H. C. Mei, Mr. Hollis A. Wilbur, Miss Jane Ward and others. It was announced that contemporaneous with the service then being held in Shanghai a service was being held in America under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. and the Y. M. C. A. A quartette composed of Miss McNeil, Miss Tong, Mr. L. T. Chen and Mr. G. A. Fitch, with chorus, sang Spohr's "Blest are the Departed" and Mrs. S. M. Woo sang "I know that my Redeemer liveth."

Quinsan Dramatics Open At Olympic

Wholly novel among the current list of dramatic offerings and striking a popular chord was the opening production last night of the revival of the Quinsan dramatics at the Olympia theater by the Society for the Preservation of the Quinsan Dramatics. The productions which will be continued through this evening and tomorrow evening, are being offered under the patronage of Mr. H. Y. Moh, who is taking part in person.

Copies of the plays being given with explanatory pamphlets are an aid to those unfamiliar with this particular series of Chinese dramatic offerings. The proceeds of the three performances are to be devoted to a fund being raised to establish a school for the study of Quinsan dramatics.

Many Tientsin Bodies Denounce Liang Shih-yi

Six charges of treason were brought against Liang Shih-yi, the Peking premier, by 75 organisations in Tientsin in a lengthy telegraphic memorandum filed with the Presidential Office yesterday. The Tientsin Chinese Chamber of Commerce, the most influential body in the Northern city, led in the verbal bombardment against the "God of Wealth," who is now on leave of absence.

The text of the message follows:

"On account of the political intrigue instigated by Liang Shih-yi, Yeh Kung-cho and Chang Hu to imperil the people and ruin the nation, we had previously telegraphed our request that they be tried and punished in order to serve as a warning to other corrupt officials. As a result both Liang and Yeh secured their leave of absence and the Minister of Foreign Affairs, W. W. Yen, was authorised to hold the premiership concurrently.

"Through this change, we thought that the Central Government would rescind the Presidential mandate issued through the coercion of Liang and Chang and refrain from negotiating for foreign loans and at the same time make a thorough investigation of the entire scandal and bring the culprits to justice.

"A number of days have elapsed and we have heard nothing. We are at a loss to understand the reason for this negligence However, we understand that Liang is resolved to try his hand once more in the affairs of the nation and is plotting with W. W. Yen for his return to power. Under the pretext of giving a social function to the Ministers of the foreign powers represented at Peking, Liang returned to Peking and tries to re-enter the Cabinet. If Yen is acting as the premier, it is quite sufficient that he be present. Why should Liang, who to all intents and purposes, has quit the Cabinet, be required to do the entertainment? This intrigue entered into by Liang and Yen is a disgrace to the nation and furnishes a laughing stock for the foreigners. If the Central administration fails to see the motive of the whole matter and allows him to cancel his leave of absence, we are afraid that there will be unending turmoil on the political sea.

ENUMERATE "CRIMES"

"Below we enumerate the various crimes that have been committed by Liang during his short term of office in deceiving the nation's chief executive and wilfully selling the country:

"When Liang first joined the Cabinet, the Shantung question was hanging fire at Washington. Lu Chung-yu, the pro-Japanese Chiaotung ringleader, embraced the opportunity and placed Liang in touch with the Japanese in order to enable them to deal directly with each other. It is significant that Obata, the Japanese Minister, was the first Minister to congratulate Liang upon the latter's assumption of office as premier. The occasion was utilised for the discussion of secret negotiations over the Shantung issue.

"In the accepted principles of international relationship, diplomatic affairs must be transacted through the proper channels and the Ministry of Foreign Affairs is the right office for discussion of such matters. No matters of diplomatic significance therefore should have been taken up when the foreign minister is greeting our premier as he enters office. Liang Shih-yi was fully aware of this practice, yet he deliberately infringed upon the rights of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and brought the question of the Shantung railroad into discussion. He verbally agreed to a Japanese loan for the redemption of that line.

"This, of course, was denied in the circular telegram by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs as the result of the strenuous protest of the people. But the telegram distinctly said that Liang had planned for a loan, either externally or internally although it did not specify that Japan should be lender, nor that Japan should be given the preference in case of a foreign loan. The message amounts also to an admission that Japan was included as a lender in the contemplation. Hence the text itself was self-contradictory.

"It is customary to record everything that passes between representatives of two nations acting diplomatically. The conversation between Liang and Obata was recorded. It clearly showed that they discussed and negotiated on the railway question. On account of the popular opposition, Liang has tried hundreds of methods to whitewash his sin, but it is too late because the record has already been published and circulated broadcast.

INSTRUCTED DELEGATES?

"As soon as he entered the Cabinet, Liang instructed the three delegates at Washington that he was planning to redeem the railway by the proceeds of a Japanese loan. This proposal he submitted to a subsequent Cabinet meeting. In the course of the discussion, he considered the plan as one of the cleverest things that he had ever conceived and congratulated himself for the practicability of the scheme. In urging the adoption of his scheme, he announced that while it had taken the three delegates at Washington an entire month to bring up a question, without much progress, his simple but complete scheme would be acceptable to the world within the shortest space of time. All the Cabinet members except Yeh Kung-cho favored the purchase of the railway outright and control of it by China. Yeh, however, argued that the purchase must be carried out by a loan and Liang stood firm in his original plan. Public opposition was roused. Feeling ran high. Liang in order to clear himself of the entanglement, cabled to the three delegates for a confirmation as to whether or not he had sent them any instructions with reference to the Japanese loan. The delegates, while denying receipt of any such instructions, did mention in their reply that Liang had instructed them as to the plan for redeeming the railway by a loan and then securing the control of the railway. This is concrete evidence that Liang did give them the instructions as was alleged.

"When he discovered that he had been defeated at his own game, Liang immediately instructed the Ministry of Communications to invite the people of the Republic to advocate the redemption of the road by the people themselves. In addition, he pledged personally the payment of $3,000,000 to initiate the fund. A great deal of propaganda work was started throughout the country by him in order to make his own position secure and enable him to sell the nation and fatten his pocket.

"This is crime number two.

REPLY UNSATISFACTORY

"The people's delegates at Washington telegraphed that the Shantung case was being referred to Peking for direct negotiation with Japan. The text of that telegram has been forwarded to you with a request for an explanation. The reply from the government was that the necessary explanations had been given in the circular telegram sent out by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. This is very ambiguous and unsatisfactory. The entry of intriguing politics is clearly seen between the lines of the reply.

"At that time, the government was in receipt of the four alternative proposals on the Shantung issue as suggested by Great Britain and the United States. We were to select one as the final solution of the vexing problem. The three delegates at Washington had submitted them to Peking for selection. Liang ignored them at the Cabinet meeting. When it subsequently came up, Liang remained silent while Yeh Kung-cho suggested a delay in the reply to the proposals. The idea of these two worthies was, of course, to wait until the Washington Conference was closed so that they could seal the fate of Shantung and allow Japan to subjugate it for ever.

"It was currently reported in Peking that Liang made $5,000,000 out of this attempt to alienate the sovereignty and territory of China. This allegation, though not definitely proven, is full of probabilities. His conduct was at least suspicious when he, during the deliberations, received the Japanese Minister in secret session contrary to diplomatic usage and discussed the question directly with him. Despite the whitewash, therefore, we are still able to trace the 'spider's cobweb' and 'horse's hoof mark' along his course of action.

"Liang knew full well that his cabinet was destined to be short-lived. At first, he declared that he would not leave Peking unless turned out by force of arms. Later, he announced that when he fell he would fall with the president. These declarations were extensively circulated by Liang's proteges. The worst of it is that the Liang clique attributed his difficulties to the feeling of emnity between the Chihli and Fengtien factions. One day they would spread the rumor that the Chihli army was increasing its force. On another their propagandists would allege that Mukden was preparing for a sanguine engagement with Chihli. The telegrams of Chang Tso-lin were branded as ultimatums addressed to the Chihli camp, while those of Tsao Kun were styled as a threat to drive all the Fengtien troops beyond the Great Wall. The result was commotion and chaos among the residents in Peking and Tientsin who feared that a great catastrophe was soon to befall them. Civil war was nearing and the very foundation of the Republic was being shaken.

BANK RUMOR SPREAD

"Before Liang filed his leave of absence, the Ministry of Foreign Affairs circulated the provinces by telegram, asserting that the Government had not altered its original aims and purposes with reference to the Shantung issue. This was in order that the public might feel that Liang had really done nothing to affect the status of the Shantung issue and that the Liang clique might be able to remain in power when the popular indignation died down. The rumor was also spread that the Bank of Communications would soon stop the payment of specie on its notes. By this rumor Liang expected to convince the public that unless he remained in power, there would be another financial panic.

"Crime number five therefore consists of the creation of a financial disturbance for his own political ambition and avarice.

"Liang Shih-yi, Chow Tsze-chi Chu Chi-chien, Yeh Kung-cho and Chang Hu were secretly negotiating with American and Japanese capitalists for a loan of $20,000,000, offering our customs surplus, the salt surplus and new surtax as securities. They consent to give the new Consortium financial control of China for the next 25 years. The amount of Japanese loans, totalling $14,000,000, secured by Little Hsu during the Anfu regime would be taken over by the proposed lenders. When the public was high in their cry to oust Liang, his confrere, Chow Tsze-chi, was just about to sign the loan being concluded with Americans and Japanese. Liang wanted to remain in office and share part of the spoils.

"Any one of the above-mentioned crimes of Liang is sufficient to cause disturbance in the country and upset the political and diplomatic equilibrium. If the Central Government will tolerate this person, we will soon have a revival of the treasons committed before the Anfu-Chihli fight in 1919.

"In the name of internal peace and for the sake of our life and property, the local bodies at Tientsin, seventy-five in number, beg leave to ask Your Excellency to enumerate the crimes of Liang Shih-yi and his accomplices and mete out their deserved punishment so that the minds of the public may once more be set at ease and the foundation of the country be left intact!"

WOMEN VOTERS IN U.S. PUSHING TWO MEASURES

Seek Better Status For Members Of Sex Who Wed Foreigners

Foreign Press Service

Washington, Jan. 15.—The two important former women's suffrage organisations in the United States, now the National Woman's Party and the National League of Women Voters, respectively, have prepared legislation relating to women which will be introduced into Congress early in the year. In addition, the National Woman's Party has announced campaigns in nine states, the legislatures of which convene in January, for a bill in line with the legislation which they have prepared for Congress.

The bill prepared by the National League of Women Voters, while involving some points of legal difficulty, is not of a nature to arouse controversy. It aims to establish independent citizenship for married women.

Under the present law, marriage to an American has conferred upon a foreign-born woman the right of citizenship, while marriage to a foreigner has taken away the right from an American-born woman. The league will sponsor a bill providing that an American woman, while she lives in the United States shall not lose her citizenship through marriage to a foreigner, and that a foreign-born woman must take out naturalisation papers for herself.

Such a measure was endorsed by resolution by both Democratic and Republican Presidental conventions last year. The National Woman's Party, on the other hand, has prepared a bill, as to the constitutionality of which the best legal opinion is divided. The Congressional measure is in the form of an amendment to the Federal Constitution and reads:

"Sec. 1.—No political, civil or legal disabilities or inequalities on account of sex, or on account of marriage, unless applying alike to both sexes, shall exist within the United States or any place subject to their jurisdiction.

A very respectable body of legal opinion maintains that this wording will stand the test of the courts and will, by establishing sex equality, destroy the mass of welfare legislation for the protection of women which has been built up with so much effort. But there is very good opinion on the other side; and the amendment is being opposed by friends of woman's emancipation on the ground that special laws for the protection of women will, in fact, be imperilled.

The State bill, in line with the proposed Constitutional amendment, is designed to give women "the same rights, privileges, and immunities under the law as men" and to abrogate in every respect "the common law of women." It has, however, a provision to the effect that the act shall not affect laws regulating the employment of women in industry. This bill has already been accepted by Wisconsin.

TELLS OF FIGHT CHINESE HAVE MERELY TO LIVE

"Living Conditions in China" was the subject of the address given by Miss Louise Hammond of Wusih before the Social Service Department of the American Woman's Club yesterday afternoon at 18 Yuen Ming Yuen Road.

Miss Hammond showed very strikingly how economic pressure conditioned the life of the workers of China, making "rice" their main interest in life, so that the common form of salutation in the country is not, "How do you do?" but "Have you eaten rice yet?". To escape hunger the bulk of the Chinese must work and plan and fight all their lives and it is small wonder that spirituality is the possession of a very small proportion.

That the Chinese have the capacity for the appreciation and creation of beauty is shown, so Miss Hammond claims, not only by the masterpieces of the educated but by the sacrifices of the humblest for education, or by the eagerness of the poorest to trudge miles to see an exquisite plum garden. The surplusage of population makes it impossible for all to have rice. Hence the unsuccessful become thieves or the bolder robbers. It has been the speaker's experience in Wusih, however, that within a few years labor has become much more scarce, so that there are now no long waiting lists at the mills, and that will soon mean higher wages for the employees.

POVERTY CONSTANT

"This constant pinch of poverty," said the speaker, "affects every item of the life of the working classes and eats into their characters. Instead of being able to put first things first the prime emphasis of life has to be placed upon food. In asking a woman the occupation of her husband you inquire: 'Does he eat merchant or teacher rice?' The need for the minutest economy forces families to live together without a pretense of privacy and besides the other evils which result therefrom this in itself may well be responsible for the lack of truthfulness, for only by lying can any secrets be kept.

"While Chinese are economical to a degree the foreigner cannot understand, on occasions like weddings or funerals they will spend with a lavishness of which we would not dream and put themselves in debt for years to cover the expense. On this account the guilds which lend money to their members are tremendously popular, although the interest which the borrower has to pay amounts to usury.

SELL GIRLS TO LIVE

"One of the evils to which the Chinese are forced by the difficulty of providing rice for hungry mouths is the sale of their girl babies. Often as 'little servants' in good homes, they are kindly treated, their work is not too heavy, they are married off and independent after marriage. A child of four years can be bought for $7 to $10 but girls of 16 bring from $16 to $100. It is often to the advantage of a mother-in-law to buy a prospective daughter as she can then have her services as household servant before as well as after her marriage. While these girls are often very happy and are sometimes adopted as the daughters of their purchasers there are many tragic outcomes of the system.

"The standard of living must be raised among the Chinese before we can hope for fuller development of character," concluded the speaker, "but we cannot but admire what they have already achieved under such heavy handicaps."

SHANTUNG FOLK INTERESTED IN PARLEY RESULT

(China Press Correspondence)

Hwanghsien, Shantung, Feb. 8.—Much interest is being felt here in the outcome of the Washington conference as to its decisions on Shantung problems, especially the building of the Weihsien-Chefoo railroad, which will come through Hwanghsien. The automobile road which is being built from Weihsien to Chefoo via Hwanghsien is now practically completed to this place, and the grade has been largely completed from here to Chefoo, but this part of the road has not been rolled.

The chief engineer of this road has been called to Peking, and there is much talk of road being changed to a railroad instead of an automobile road. The road can be used by autmobiles from Weihsien to Hwanghsien within a few months. Only the larger bridges are to be completed.

So far, however, no machines are in sight. It is said that the automobiles and trucks intended for this road went to Chang Tso-lin when his famous march to Mongolia was planned. While he did not get to Mongolia, he got several automobiles and trucks which could have done good service on this new road.

The people in this section have long been wanting a railroad from Weihsien to Chefoo, and now with the right of way and the road bed ready to hand over it seems there should be little trouble in building the road. It will pass through an exceedingly fertile section, and goes via Lung K'o, where all the trafic from west Shantung will go to reach Manchuria. It will unquestionably pay well, and will be wonderfully helpful to Chefoo, Hwanghsien, Lung K'o and Tung Chow which it goes through.

Plans are now being drawn for the main buildings of the North China Baptist College, which is located in Hwanghsien. Mr. Dowglass, of Chefoo, is the architect and has moved his family here to superintend the buildings.

The contract has also been let for the building of a new institutional church in Hwanghsien, and the work will start on it in the early spring.

Mr. Frank Lide and Mr. S. E. Ayers have gone to Tsining to help in famine relief work. Messrs. Moore, of Chefoo, Larson, of Laiyang, and Jacobs, of Laichow, have also gone to have a part in famine relief work in western Shantung.

Miss Blanche Bradley, who has been in the Hwanghsien hospitals as Trained Nurse, has gone to America on account of her health.

On account of an abundance of rain and snow the outlook for a good wheat crop in this section has never been better.

Dutch Pleased With Conference

(Reuter's Service)

The Hague, Feb. 9.—In the Second Chamber today, the Foreign Minister, dealing with the Pacific Treaty, said that the confidence which had been inspired in Holland by statements in the Parliaments of the various powers that they would respect the rights of the Netherlands regarding Dutch possessions in the Pacific had been justified by the convention signed in Washington.

PRESIDENT HSU BETWEEN FIRES; JOB IN DANGER

Foreign Observers Think He Will Be Out In Few Months

(Chung Mei News Agency)

Peking, Feb. 7.—Reports are now rife in Peking that the attitude of Liang Shih-yi has involved President Hsu in such embarrassment that his own tenure of office is becoming very insecure. Chinese and foreign observers are of the opinion that whether he dismiss Liang or induces him to return to office, his position will be very difficult and that three or four months will see him out of the presidency.

His dismissal of Liang would of course call down upon him the opposition of General Chang Tso-lin and the two Chiaotung cliques while his retention of the premier in office would antagonise Wu Pei-fu and his party together with the six provinces which have supported Wu's campaign against Liang.

Except for the introduction of this new report there has been no new development in the political situation and the Chinese papers are bewailing the fact that two factions are holding separate conferences on the question of the government of the republic much as if it were a question of international negotiations.

LIANG A TARGET

The Peking Ching Pao regrets that the antagonism of the two parties has caused Liang to be made the target for the attacks of General Wu Pei-fu and that the whole situation in the North is now endangered. This paper, an organ of the old Chiaotung clique, feels that Wu's charges are ungrounded and that his failure to produce any proof for his allegations in the face of the telegrams from Chang Tso-lin and Lu Yung-hsiang, has shown that the premier is really innocent of the charges brought against him.

It suggests that this is an excellent opportunity for Liang Shih-yi to prove his worth to his fellow-country-men by sacrificing his position for the sake of the people who would be the losers in case the Fengtien and Chihli parties came to blows over the question of his retention in office.

According to reports the discussions of General Wu Pei-fu and Tsao Kun have resulted in the adoption of two courses of action in connection with the cabinet situation. The first involves the following measures: No reinstatement of monarchists, no reemployment of Anfuites, no reemployment of traitors. These reservations refer particularly to such men as Chang Hsun, the recently pardoned Anfu leaders, and Tsao Yu-ling and Lu Chung-yu.

YEN MAY STAY

These conditions would allow the retention of the present Liang cabinet while the second course would provide for the retention of Dr. Yen as acting premier and the retention of Yeh Kung-cho in the Ministry of Communications. Two conditions would be imposed upon Yeh, however. These would be that no foreign loans should be contracted and that all receipts of the Ministry of Communications be made public. In case the Chihli party consents to Liang's return to office its leaders would also require publicity in all financial matters and the summoning of a national affairs convention.

These two courses of action were decided upon on the fourth of this month according to the Shung Tien Shih Pao and the Chiaotung clique has supposedly evinced its willingness to accept one or the other of these propositions. Liang, this paper also reports, has been trying to resign but his followers have urged him to retain his office and consider taking up his duties again along the lines laid down in the Chihli party's first proposition.

THIRTEEN NOTED MUSICIANS PLAY FOR MOSKOWSKI

Benefit For Famous Composer Nets G.$15,000

(Foreign Press Service)

New York, Jan. 13.—Thirteen world-famous pianists played thirteen pianos at a remarkable concert given recently in New York City for the benefit of one of the foremost composers and pianists of our time, Moritz Moskowski, who was once prosperous, is now ill and destitute in Paris. Not a seat in the great ball was vacant and there were scores standing.

Each of the thirteen pianists had a piano, so there were thirteen pianos of five different makers on the stage. They played all together two by two, separately, and in the number three played together, Mr. Walter Damrosch, who occupied a conductor's stand at the back, conducted them. This kept them together.

Alphabetically arranged, there were William Bachaus, Harold Bauer, Alfredo Casella, Ignaz Friedman, Ossip Cabrillowitsch, Percy Grainger, Ernest Hutcheson, Joesi Lhevinno, Elly Ney, Leo Ornstein Genmaine Schnitzer, Sigismond Stojowski and Ernest Schelling.

In the intermission, three autographed programs were auctioned off, one of which was bought by John McCormack, the Irish singer for $1,000 to the tune of a piano fanfare from the stage. It was announced that the total receipts from the sale of seats, the auction, and donations, were about $15,000 enough to provide for Moskowski for the remainder of his life.

MOTOR ROAD AT HANGCHOW IS PROGRESSING

(China Press Correspondence)

Hangchow, Feb. 10.—There is much talk here now of a proposed motor road from Hangchow to Kashing in one direction and to Shaoshing in another. The shorter road from the city out to the famous Lin Yin temple is progressing rapidly and promises to be completed during the month of March. The man behind the schemes is Police Commissioner Shiah, who is working out this and other plans for the good of the city. The first step in the larger road scheme is to build the road from Za-koh to the foreign settlement, twelve miles away.

Another development of much import to the city is the survey now under way for a railway to go from Hangchow to Tong-lo and other points up the river. While still another which is occupying the hopes of the people is a circular street car line within the city proper. Just now a group of local capitalists are seeking the approval of the authorities for the street railway.

Through the generous co-operation of the American ex-minister Crane and Police Commissioner Shiah the Hangchow Young Men's Christian Association is experimenting with an artesian well. So far it is only an experiment, for a distance of four hundred and fifty-five feet has not brought a satisfactory amount of water. Commissioner Shiah was on the grounds this morning and announced his willingness to see it through to a depth of six hundred feet. In the meanwhile the Y. M. C. A. members are exercising their faith through prayer for water. Mr. Crane's contribution toward the well was Taels two thousand, and Commissoner Shiah will probably have to match it.

The Hangchow Missionary Association was entertained in its regular meeting this month by the ladies of the Baptist mission in the home of Mrs. E. H. Cressey. The special feature of the meeting was an original paper on the "Place of women in Buddhism" by Miss Margaret Mack of the Y. W. C. A. Miss Mack has backed her wide reading on the subject with an extensive local investigation of the women leaders of Buddhism in Hangchow. The paper is worthy of wider circulation.

Famine Raging In Armenia

(French Wireless through Reuter)

Paris, Feb. 9.—The Temps emphasises that famine is raging in Armenia. Women and children in rags are reduced to the extremity of looking for scraps of food in the snow.

The Angora Government recently sent twenty four food trains for the relief of the starving population, but the paper declares that if the despatch of supplies does not continue, the famine will make thousands of victims during the winter.

Peking Hears Sun Will Launch Attack Soon

(Chung Mei News Agency)

Peking, Feb. 7.—With the advent of warm weather reports are again reaching Peking concerning Sun Yat-sen's campaign against the North. The Canton president's change of headquarters, negotiation with Chen Chiung-ming, and spring in the South have all combined to revive rumors and reports as to Sun's plans and the possibility of the anti-Peking plans materialising into action.

The idea has by no menas been given up and Dr. Sun is authoritatively said to have sent a message to Chen Chiung-ming, purporting to be in the nature of an ultimatum, which presents three demands upon the powerful Southern general. The first is that he take into consideration that the military and civil authority in a state must be separated except in the person of the president and that he therefore should follow all provisions of the civil law and acknowledge the power of President Sun in all affairs regarding the Southern Republic; the second demand was for support in the campaign; and the third asked specifically for aid in the question of financing the expedition.

To date General Chen has not actively favored the employment of active measures against the North and has used all his influence for a peaceful settlement of the question of unification. Reports from Canton indicate that there is a general feeling in that city that Chen now will take a more active interest in Sun's plans and give him support against the North. The influence of General Chen is very pronounced. Dr. Sun finds his hands tied as long as Chen withholds his whole-hearted support.

Particularly is this necessity for Chen's support felt in the matter of finances, the one important drawback to all Sun's military plans and the Canton president is making every effort to induce him to help in raising the necessary funds. If the money can be raised active measures are expected in the near future, in fact as soon as the weather makes military movements possible.

Meantime Dr. Sun has moved his headquarters from Kweilin, Kwangsi, to Yungchow, Hunan. Several brigades have already been transferred and the president himself expects to follow them shortly. The people of Hunan are rather favorable to Sun's advance in spite of the opposition of their Tuchun who is steadily losing his power and influence. Whether or not these reports indicate that the campaign will actually become a realty cannot be known until Spring is really here, but the fact remains that it is again beginning to be talked about and it seems not to have been entirely abandoned.

Peking American Boys Win At Hockey

(Chung Mei News Agency)

Peking, Feb. 6.—Peking skaters can win an ice-hockey match occasionally, but it takes Peking's juniors to do it. This, at least, was the general verdict after the Peking American School youngsters took the Tungchow American School seven into camp this morning by a score of 4 goals to one.

With the blowing of the whistle Peking started to attack, and play was near the Tungchow goal most of the time. Alfred Stanley, playing goal for Tungchow, made many clever stops in this period and, assisted by a strong defence, kept Peking from scoring until towards the end of the period, when Eric Thunder, the Peking captain, took the puck at his own and, made a brilliant run through the whole visiting team and scored a party goal that the guardian had no chance of stopping.

Tungchow tied the score in the second period through a goal shot from scrimmage by George Lows and Captain Alfred Corbett. This joint effort was the only score of the period.

The last two periods were all Peking's. Millard Arnold opened the scoring for Peking with a hot shot from a pass from behind the Tungchow goal; and a few minutes later Er Trunder made a pretty run and scored unassisted. Eric Thunder then ended the scoring in the fourth period with a long high shot from the centre of the rink that was lucky to get by the goalkeeper.

Peking had a good forward line. The defence was not up to the standard set by the forwards, but Owen Krause in goal showed promise. Eric Thunder was the star for Peking and was by far the best player on the ice. Millard Arnold and Arthur Sullivan supported Thunder well.

For Tungchow the best players were Ben Houghton, the diminutive left wing, Alfred Corbett, George Lows and the entire defence. The team has had only one week on the ice, and this was on the frozen moat outside the city wall.

Goals for Peking: Eric Thunder 3, M. Arnold 1; for Tungchow: Corbett-Lowe 1. Referee: Mr. Burr; Timekeeper: Mr. Thunder; Time: Four ten-minute periods.

JEWISH PLAY SUNDAY

There will be a football match tomorrow between 'A' and 'B' teams of the Jewish Recreation Club at 2:45 p.m. sharp at tthe Hongkew Park.

All players are requested to be early on the ground.

Rickard Tries To Hire Tilden

London, Jan. 5.—The Westminster Gazette publishes a report that Tilden has been offered £500 by Tex Rickard, who promoted the Carpentier-Dempsey fight, to become a professional in a tournament which Rickard is trying to promote in New York. Three other leading tennis players were offered the same terms but they all refused.

The American Lawn Tennis Association, meanwhile, is making the amateur rule more stringent than ever. Rickard has been informed that he had better confine his efforts to professionals to commercialise sport.

The Lawn Tennis Association has decided that the value of trophies other than for the Challenge Cup shall be limited to £5 for singles cups and £5 each for doubles cups.

A resolution empowering the umpire to disqualify and player who he considers is unnecessarily delaying the game was defeated, but an amendment was passed to the effect that play should be continuous and without unnecessary delay from the first service until the match is concluded.

The idea is to prevent players who are opposed by better men gaining a breathing space by pausing for pick-me-ups between the games or sets, as was done in a famous match last year.

Strokeside Wins 68-20 Over Bowside Basketeers

Clever Teamwork And Passing Gives Winners A Run-Away

The Strokeside swamped the Bowside at the Rowing Club last night for the second time this season. The score was 68-20. Team work, particularly sharp passing turned the trick. The Bowside were short Smith and Gattrell, and absolutely minus on combination.

Goldman and Neprud got the bulk of the baskets, the former pocketing 14 and the latter 11. Johnson threw nine more for the winners. Van Hook, of the "Y" team who filled in at center for Smith, and the forwards Hale and Bell accounted for the Bowside points.

Th Strokeside had the game 32-6 at the end of the first half. In the last period they seemed to slacken up, taking practice at passing, perhaps with the idea of dividing scoring honors more evenly.

The summary follows:

Strokeside 68		Bowside 20
Goldman	LF	Hale
Johnson	RF	Bell
Neprud	C	Van Hook

E. Nash	RG	Atkinson

DOWN-HILL LIE MADE EASY BY BARNES' ADVICE

BY JIM BARNES

In playing the down-hill lie the first thing to remember is that you brace with the left leg instead of the right, as you must do in playing an up-slope shot.

The left leg does the bracing, to keep you from falling forward, one of the most common faults in the down-hill or down-slope effort.

The feet are further apart. The ball should be about midway between the feet with an open stance.

Having taken this position, with the left leg held firmly, the next thing to take up is to keep the weight well back in the act of hitting the ball.

In the up-hill shot the weight goes forward, but it must be held well in check for the opposite slope. If the weight isn't held back one is almost sure to fall in toward the ball.

THE SWING

Playing down hill it is necessary to use an upright swing. This again is almost opposite to the swing used for the up-slope, where it is better to follow the angle of the ground.

There is always a tendency to slice in playing down hill, so it is just as well to play for the left of the green.

Three important details to remember are to shorten the swing, stand closer to the ball and use more lofted clubs.

As the down-slope shot is one of the hardest in golf, by shortening the grip one gets better control of the stroke.

It is a big mistake in this stroke to carry the hands out ahead of the club. Always let the club head get there first. If the hands get in ahead of the club it is much harder to get the ball up.

The main thing in the down-hill try is, of course, to get the ball up quickly, as there is a decided tendency to top. So hit through and lift the club head as it passes under the ball. This is one of the few places in golf—almost the only one—where I advocate attempting to lift the ball. For, as a rule, any attempt to lift the ball is sure to lead to trouble, but the down-sloper is often an extreme case.

THE MENTAL ATTITUDE

The mental attitude of the golfer often plays a big part in this stroke. For when the average player comes to a decided down-hill lie he surrenders at once.

Many of them will admit that they are helpless here and so give up, expecting to top the ball.

There is no reason why this stroke can't be learned. For there are so many occasions when it must be played that it makes a big difference in one's score to get right upon the matter to have at least a fair amount of confidence in pulling it off.

There is no stroke that can be played with any half-hearted effort. Confidence usually means hitting through in a determined way, and this is always an essential thing.

It is a good idea in this stroke to hold both elbows fairly close in and then to check the swing with the elbows, by which I mean to use the elbows to keep the swing compact and not too wide.

In the down-slope swing the main thing to work on is the matter of balance. It is the hardest of all shots to get one's balance firmly planted.

To get this balance the support must come mainly from the left knee. This knee, in a way, must do double duty.

Don't duck too much with the right shoulder. There is always a tendency in the direction of this fault.

Again it is always better to use a simple, well-controlled swing and not go out after distance. Never try to kill the ball under these conditions.

If you do you are sure to lose your balance completely and make a smear of it.

The wrists should be used more than normally on this shot, where it is much after the matter of taking a flick at the ball.

Another matter to take into consideration is that of turning out the club head slightly. This will help to get the ball up more quickly, where the club head turned in will lead to a smothering effort.

So keep in mind these important details for the down-hill try:

1. Feet further apart.
2. Brace with the left leg.
3. Keep weight well back while hitting.
4. Use upright swing.
5. Use shorter grip.
6. Stand closer to the ball.
7. Use more lofted clubs.
8. Hit through with flick.
9. Don't duck right shoulder.
10. Play ball midway between feet.

Half Of Famine Sufferers Must Die Says Nansen

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, Feb. 5.—At the first session of the International Russian Famine Relief Committee in Paris, Dr. Nansen made a statement that from now on not more than half of the total number of sufferers could be saved from death. The total sum given by the European Governments is estimated at twenty-eight million francs.

A representative of Holland proposed to send a delegation to the Genoa Conference with the object of inviting all the nations participating in the conference to participate in the activities of the relief committee.

Accuses French Of Giving Aero Help To Finns

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, Feb. 5.—The Humanite in Paris states: "Having full proof we state that the French Government or, to be exact, the Department of Aircraft is sending to the Finnish Government aeroplanes bearing the trademark 'Codron.' Two weeks ago eight machines of this mark were dispatched to Helsingfors, and we have reason to suppose that similar shipments still are being made. Will the day never dawn when the French workmen will force their rulers to observe peace?"

Asia Banking Corporation

February 10, 1922

Spot bar silver was unchanged and forward up ⅛d. in London yesterday. The New York price advanced to 65⅞ cents, and the London-New York cross rate declined to 436.

The only change in the official quotations here today was a drop in the Gold Dollar rate to 72½. The market in the morning was inclined to be firm, with speculators selling.

A fair amount of business in Sterling was done at 3-4⅛ for February, at between 3-4 and 3-4⅛ for March and 3-3⅜ for April. Gold Dollars were done at 73 for February, 72½ for March and 72 for April.

In the afternoon, however, the market became easier, especially for Gold Dollars, and closed with buyers of Sterling at 3-4⅛ for February, 3-4 for March and 3-3⅜ for April. There were buyers of Gold Dollars at the close at 72⅜ for February, 72⅜ for March and 72 for April.

The rise in forward silver in London yesterday is attributed to bear covering. No advices as yet have been received from New York.

Hankow Market

FINANCE & MONEY MARKET

Silver remained as last reported, namely 35d. and 34⅝d. ready and forward. China has bought and sold forward while India has sold forward and bought a little. Export bills were conspicuous by their absence and what transactions there were, were chiefly of an Inter-Bank nature. With only two days in which business could be done the market was without feature. Sterling T.T. advanced ⅛d., the closing quotations being T.T. 3s. 7d. and 4 m-s. sight bills 3s. 11⅜d. The New York-London cross rate rose to 4.28⅜d., this being the rate received here on February 2 when business was resumed. Chinese market rates for Shanghai taels, local currency dollars, and native interest remained about the same as last reported.

EXPORTS

China New Year holidays being in full swing during the week rendered business out of the question and there is nothing therefore to report.

IMPORTS

There is nothing to report as China New Year holidays were in full swing during the week.

Rubber Prices

Messrs. R. N. Truman and Company have received the following telegram from their Singapore Agents in connection with the auctions held at Singapore on February 8:

No. 1 Smoked Sheet $0.30½ per pound equivalent to 8½d. ex warehouse Singapore.

No. 1 Crepe $0.30 per pound equivalent to 8⅝d. ex warehouse Singapore.

Market steady. Offered 801 tons; sold 676 tons.

Messrs. J. A. Wattie and Company have received the following telegram from Messrs. Barker and Company, London dated February 8:

Average Spot price standard quality Ribbed Smoked Sheet 8¾d.

Average Spot price standard quality First Crepe 8¾d.

Market steady.

Lace Market

Messrs. Industrial Export (China) Company write as follows in their latest lace market report:

Business is very quiet with practically no enquiries. Reports from the U.S.A. are unfavorable, stocks being still plentiful with low prices ruling. The quality of Filet Laces in this market is gradually improving, and much superior merchandise is being offered in comparison with last month.

Singapore Rubber Auction

Singapore, January 25, 1922

A further decline in all markets has to be recorded this week. London has touched 9d. and New York 16¾ cents. The local market has followed the decline to a certain extent, the forward positions generally suffering more than nearer deliveries. This morning a slight recovery has taken place in the consuming markets, and in consequence hereof the local market immediately became steadier.

The weekly auction today was well attended, and there was a very fair demand for all grades owing to "shorts" covering.

The total amount catalogued for sale was 830 tons, of which 555 were offered and 428 sold.

Awarded Standard Ribbed Smoked Sheet sold at 30 cents in the morning, but owing to a good demand it advanced to 30½ cents. This price marks a decline of 5 cents on the week.

Some buyers withdrew their lots at 30½ cents, probably with a view to disposing of them in the outside market.

Sheet equal to Standard met with a keen competition, selling at 30½ cents. A few lots in cases reached 31 cents.

Good lots of Off Quality Sheet found ready buyers paying fair prices.

Awarded Standard 1st Latex fetched 29½ cents.

Crepe equal to Standard and also Off Color Latex sold to an interested market.

Brown, Dark and Barky Crepes were easy of sale at prices on an average about 4 cents down.

The German Mark

(Times of Malaya)

The recent unprecedented fall in the value of the German mark and the consequent heavy deals in them in Malaya and elsewhere in anticipation of a rise raises the interesting question of the appreciation of the mark in the near future.

In matters of this sort it is a good and salutary thing to search for instruction and guidance in the lessons of the past, for the future very truly hides itself in the past. It was in 1873 that the gold mark of 100 pfennigs was adopted as the standard of value and as the money of account of the German Empire. The gold mark was enacted by the laws of the German Empire to consist of 3,982 grammes (6.146 grains) of gold 900 fine and is equal to English standard gold of the value of 11.747 pence, or roughly 20 marks are equal to one pound sterling.

Recent German statistics are not available in respect both of the metallic reserves and the paper currency of Germany: but it cannot be doubted that the paper currency of Germany has been immensely increased out of all proportion to the metallic reserves. There has been, in fact, a redundancy in the issue of paper money, and while it is true that scarcity of money is disadvantageous to a nation it is not quite certain that redundancy of money is equally disadvantageous. Many economists of reputation, including Macculloch, L. L. Price, F. A. Walker and W. Stanley Jevons, maintain that redundancy of money operates beneficially, in as much as it stimulates all kinds of enterprise and brings about a general reduction of indebtedness. When money loses in value, the same interest weighs less heavily on the debtor than it did before. Jevons has in particular emphasised this point. According to him depreciation of the currency has the same effect on the community as the cancellation of his debts would have on a bankrupt.

It seems to be that the recent unexampled depreciation in the value of the mark may have the same effect, for a time, and the question pertinently occurs, will the mark appreciate again in value and what course of action will the German Government adopt in relation thereto.

In forming an opinion, some knowledge may be gathered from other knowledge already available in the history of the assignats, being the paper money issued by the French Republic in 1789-1794 in consequence of the scarcity of coin and was termed assignats because it was secured, not upon coin but upon the crown and church property, in the purchase of which these notes were receivable at par. Each note was of 100 franc (£4) and notes returned to the State in payment of the purchase money were to be cancelled. The first issue was of 400,000,000 francs but were inconvertible except in payment for property publicly assigned for the purpose. The second issue was 800,000,000 francs and further issues effected rapidly brought the total up to 3,750,000,000 francs. At that time, in August, 1793, the depreciation of the assignats had become so great that 100 francs Assignats in circulation reached the vast total of 6,536,000,000 francs. The result was 100 francs assignats was not worth 1 franc. In October, 1795 the total issue reached 22,000,000,000, and two months later another 15,000,000,000 francs were issued and the depreciation was such that the paper became entirely valueless.

The following table of the depreciation of the assignats derived from M. Bresson's book, "History of the Finances of France" is illuminating.

24 livres in coin were worth in assignats:

April 1, 1795	238

At the last, "an assignat professing to be worth 100 francs was commonly exchanged for 5 sous 6 deniers; in other words, a paper note professing to be worth £4 sterling passed current for less than 2d. in money."

The history of the assignat makes it plain that nations are not, in the long run, exempt from the operation of economic laws. They are really under and not above such laws, though they may by legislation try to escape, but for a time only, their effect and influence.

In 1796 the French Government withdrew the assignats by buying at about one-seventieth part of the value of the coin. Judging by the history of the assignats and their conversion into one seventieth of their value it may be that the present German Government may fix by law a limited period, say six months or so, during which all the marks in circulation will be called in and paid for in specie at the then depreciated value of the mark.

Violence Follows Ghandi's Threat

(China Press Service)

London, Feb. 9.—Simultaneously with the issuance of a proclamation by Ghandi the non-co-operation leader, riots occurred in several parts of India in which many policemen and some rioters were killed.

Ghandi proclaimed that civil disobedience would become effective unless an amnesty was granted before Saturday.

After the disturbances Ghandi addressed a letter to the Viceroy declaring that he had advised the postponement of civil disobedience if the government reconsidered and liberated the prisoners within a week.

Petition President Hsu To Forward Promised Assistance

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, Feb. 7.—Chinese students in France petitioned President Hsu Shih-chang setting forth the desperate straits they are in because the Government has not provided promised funds for their expenses in Europe.

Their allowances are now five months in arrears, they declare in a telegram signed by the entire group in France, and which says the humiliation they are suffering shames not only themselves but upon the Chinese Government. Some have been turned out of educational institutions because of failure to pay tuition; others have been ousted for not paying their rent, and others have fallen afoul of the police.

They point out to President Hsu Shih-chang, that he has the reputation of being a patron of learning and eager to advance the education of the Chinese youth. And yet here are the students in France suffering from want of the funds that were promised for their education. They remind the President that he also received a degree of Doctor of Philosophy from the University of Paris for his interest in educaton, and yet the $200,000 allotted to the education of Chinese students in Europe is not being paid.

They urge the President to communicate with provincial authorities to get them to cable funds so that the government's "face" will be saved and the well-being of the Chinese students conserved.

Living Vs. Dead In Canton

BY ORRIN KEITH.

IN its attempts to transform itself into a modern city with broad streets instead of alleys and with human habitations instead of ant-hills, Canton has had to handle some unusual problems In former days the southern metropolis enjoyed the reputation of being the most crowded, most narrow-streeted city in China. That has all been changed now, however, and Canton is now acquiring a reputation for broad avenues and modern buildings.

It is quite apparent that in a congested city, where every house boasts twelve to fifteen inhabitants at least—and some of them twice as many—that you cannot widen the streets from mere alleys of eight or ten feet to broad avenues of eighty to one hundred feet without tearing down a lot of houses and thus increasing the pressure of habitation on the remainder. That is just what happened in Canton. The elaborate program of boulevard building has driven Canton's "teeming millions" to seek new places whereon to build their homes.

Now it so happeens that Canton's "teeming millions" have for many centuries been burying their millions of ancestors in the neighboring territory. This process has gone on until there is practically no room left for the later arrivals. And if there's no place for the dead, then how find room for the living? The rivers, the creeks, the canals are already overcrowded to the limit. It would seem that the Cantonese must either find a way of living in the upper air or else nature would at last put a positive check upon his tendency to propagate his kind.

The Department of Public Works of the Municipality has been making a survey of the dead, as it were, and has estimated that there are within the newly established city limits of the Canton Municipality at least 18,000,000 graves! Eighteen million ancestors crowding within the city which is already overburdened with a million and a half of the present generation!

It is quite evident that before a great many years one or the other would have had to move to other parts. Old China would have said "Let the living go. The dead must not be disturbed!" The new China which would free itself from this sort of superstition has however decreed that the dead must give way to the living. The opening of the streets has brought the matter into the field of immediate action and Canton's dead have already begun to move!

On the outskirts there is a tract which has hitherto been a city of the dead. It covers some 48,000 chien of land which is highly desirable for housing purposes. The municipal authorities have therefore determined that the graves must go and have planned a modern "subdivision" on this ground. During the month of November they exhumed from one small corner of this tract 20,000 coffins!

The method of handling this rather delicate matter is to issue an order that this land is to be used for building purposes and that all bodies must be removed. The actual digging up is done by the authorities and each coffin, as it is disinterred, is laid out for identification. The descendants or other relatives are then permitted to inspect the remains and when they have given sufficient evidence of identification, they are permitted to remove them for reburial elsewhere.

It is inevitable that such a proceeding should arouse a very real opposition among the superstitious Chinese with their uncanny reverence for the remains of their dead. It must seem to them the last word in sacrilege. And it hits the dead-revering descendant in his pocket as well as in his sentiments. For reburial means a certain amount of expense. This will vary from the mere cost of transporting the coffin to a new site in the case of the less fastidious, to a considerable outlay for fengshui doctors and ceremonial in the case of those who are still bound by the ancient customs. To pay all such expenses in every case would render the whole project a financial impossibility from the city's point of view. The necessary cost of reburial, however, it does attempt to cover. It pays to each claimant identifying a coffin from $3 to $10 according to the size of the coffin and the distance which it must be carried for reburial. So far nearly $60,000 has been paid out for the coffins already removed and nearly half of the 20,000 are still unclaimed.

To those who argue that all of this is a useless sacrilege, let it be said that the contest between the living and the dead has been going on in China for centuries. That the dead have heretofore had all the best of it is in no small measure responsible for the manifold difficulties, economic, social and political, in which the erstwhile great Middle Kingdom finds itself. Until the decision in this long-drawn contest turns in favor of the living no great or permanent change in conditions can be hoped for. The youthful city fathers of Canton, striving merely to better the conditions in their own city have, wittingly or unwittingly, taken a long step ahead in the struggle to free China from the incubus of the past.

REGISTRATION OF SERVANTS

Editor, THE CHINA PRESS.

Sir,—With reference to the paragraph headed "Registration of Servants" in your issue of Feb. 10, may I make one or two remarks.

The petition which is to be presented to the Council states that the average Chinese servant of the present day has deteriorated, asks high wages, produces false references, boycotts certain houses and is generally unsatisfactory, and it is suggested that police registration of servants will obviate these difficulties.

This I beg to doubt. How far Chinese "Boys" have deteriorated compared with twenty years ago, it is not for me to say, but compared with domestic servants in any European country during the last five, or even ten years, they are wonderful. If the average Chinese is treated with consideration he will repay his employer many times over. Their ways are not our ways, nor are their ethics our ethics, yet they are in their own way a self-respecting race and by making an effort to adapt oneself, the chief difficulties of house-keeping are obviated.

Police registration of servants will, in my opinion, fail to produce more good servants, but will rather undermine the self-respect of the class as a whole, and though registration may lessen the chances of impersonation and falsification of references, it will never take the place of a personal reference and will abolish, without providing a substitute, the reliable Chinese custom of "guarantee" by the "Number One" of those he introduces into the house.

Registration will not do away with "boycotting," but rather tend to increase it, for a householder who reports his boys to the police, is likely to find still greater difficulty in replacing them.

The introduction of this system is likely to be regarded by the Chinese as an infringement of his liberty and, in my opinion, is likely to make matters worse rather than better. If it is carried out we may expect to find ourselves confronted, if not with an actual strike, with much ill-feeling, and very shortly we may have to deal with a "Houseboys' Union" which will ask higher wages and impose conditions, without producing better servants.

A careful study of the causes of industrial unrest at home teaches many lessons and among others that it is far easier to make mistakes than to rectify them. If we can regard our employees as human beings rather than machines, we are likely to get much better results than by regulations which only lead to opposition and ill-will.

I am, Sir, Yours faithfully,
Y. MAGUIRE.

Warning by Dr. Hubbard That Some Cases of Loss of Hair Are Incurable

By Van Buren Thorne, M.D.

Dr. S. Dana Hubbard, director of the Bureau of Public Health Education of the Department of Health of New York City, said the other day in connection with a case that came up in the Municipal Court in which a corporation manufacturing an alleged "hair restorer" was called upon to prove that its product would actually grow hair, as claimed, that man "keeps pouring money on his bald head and spends time looking and hoping. The individual who buys some of these tonics in artistic colors and in attractive containers in order to relieve himself of embarrassment due to loss of hair defrauds himself and wastes time and money. They are usually blatantly advertised to do the impossible."

The physician went on to say that honest doctors and specialists in skin diseases will inform the patient whether his condition is susceptible to cure and will advise him along the lines accepted by men who have made a careful study and have had long experience in the matter.

"There are many kinds of baldness and some are impossible to cure," Dr. Hubbard said, "and in proportion to the length of time and extent of the baldness are the chances of restoring hair."

It appears, therefore, that there are two answers to this ancient—and ever new—question: "Is there hope for the bold-headed man?" These two answers are "yes" and "no." The answer which the physician should give in response to the inquiry from a prospective patient should be as cautious as the remark attributed to an extremely canny man who had his attention called to a passing flock of sheep.

"Ah, I see they've sheared the sheep," said one.

"Looks so from this side," reluctantly admitted his cautious neighbor.

Two New York physicians, Dr. George M. MacKee and Dr. George C. Andrews, have recently contributed to The New York Medical Journal, after thorough study and investigation, a comprehensive article on "The Treatment of Premature Loss of Hair," which goes into almost every conceivable phase of the subject. In it, Dr. Hubbard's statements are confirmed in every particular. The causes of the condition and the cases which are susceptible of successful treatment, as well as those that are not, and why, are plainly set forth.

Of course, their article is intended for physicians, but those parts of it which do not deal with the actual medication are set forth in a manner readily understandable by the layman, and, in consequence, are of widespread general interest.

CAUSE OF DIFFERENTIATION

Before considering the details of The Medical Journal's article, one may gain much enlightenment as to the causes for the different textures and colors of hair from a few paragraphs contained in a book called "The Glands Regulating Personality," by Dr. Louis Berman, associate in biological chemistry at Columbia University, which has just been published. The physician writes:

"There is no characteristic of the human body, except perhaps the teeth, more influenced in its quality, texture, amount and distribution than the hair. And again, each of the glands of internal secretion plays a part, and most importantly the thyroid, the suprarenal cortex (the outer layers of the glands capping the kidneys), and the interstitial sex glands. All contribute their specific effect, and the blend, the sum of the additions and subtractions constituting their influences, appears as a specific trait of the individual, a trait so significant as to be used by the professionals absorbed in the study of man, the anthropologists, as a criterion of racial classifications . . .

"The hair of the head seems to be primarily under the control of the thyroid. Thus in cretins (dwarfs by reason of defects in the glands) reconstructed by thyroid feeding, the straight, rather animal hair becomes lustrous and fine, silken and curly. In the thyroid deficiency of adults, a prominent phenomenon often is the falling out of the hair in handfuls. Baldness is frequently associated with a progressive decrease of the concentration of thyroid in the blood. At the same time there tends to be a thinning of the eyebrows, especially of the outer third."

According to Dr. MacKee and Dr. Andrews, there are four reasons why people who suffer from premature loss of hair consult barbers, beauty specialists, hair specialists and hair dressers.

1. Because they do not consider the condition to be of much importance, or they hope to save money. The doctors add that in the end many such persons spend considerably more than they would have spent if they had consulted a physician.

2. Because the family physician takes little interest or does not know what to do.

3. Because the patient does not know that dermatology is a medical specialty embracing diseases of the cutaneous appendages, including those of the skin and hair. Unfortunately the word dermatology has been abused, and many people do not appreciate the difference between the ethical medical specialist and the lay or medical quack who illegitimately appropriates the term dermatology or dermatologist.

4. Because many dermatologists do not like to treat alopecia, which is the scientific designation of loss of hair, or baldness. Various dermatologists have different reasons for this attitude. At times it is purely a matter of indifference on the part of a busy man. It may be simply a lack of interest. Usually it is caused by pride. A dermatologist dislikes, above all things, to be confused with hair specialists and beauty specialists.

THEY DISLIKE TO LOSE IT

The authors recognise the fact that, as a general rule, both men and women dislike to lose their hair. In many instances, they declare, a marked loss of hair and, in some instances, even a slight loss, will cause great anxiety and worry. Most men, when threatened with baldness, will depend upon the druggist or barber for relief. Women usually follow the advice of hair dressers and beauty specialists.

Proprietary hair tonics and the remedies used by barbers, hair dressers and beauty specialists are often efficacious preparations, the writers grant, but, they add, the failure to obtain the desired result is due largely to inability to recognise indications and type characteristics. In other words, a hair tonic or a treatment that is proper for one patient may be injurious for another patient. There cannot be a successful routine treatment for loss of hair. Each case, the writers declare, must be properly diagnosed and treated according to indications.

Loss of hair is divided into a number of clinical entities, the physicians explain. When one uses the noun alopecia without a qualifying adjective it signifies what is known as alopecia prematura—premature loss of hair. This form of alopecia is subdivided into a number of types. Before the affection can be intelligently treated one must become acquainted with the characteristics of each type. The subdivisions are:

1. Alopecia symptomatica, which simply means loss of hair as a symptom of some ailment or disease.

2. Alopecia idiopathica, or hereditaria, as the name indicates, is a loss of hair resulting from an inherited tendency, or loss of hair as a primary disease, one arising without apparent extrinsic cause.

3. Alopecia seborrhoeica, or loss of hair arising from some defect in the action of the sebaceous glands of the scalp.

Symptomatic loss of hair is coincident or subsequent to a systematic affection such as typhoid fever, pneumonia, scarlet fever, influenza and similar diseases, the physicians explain. It also accompanies excessive worry, severe mental strain, 'nervous' exhaustion, pregnancy, surgical operations and physical and mental shock.

The principal symtom is falling of the hair, the authors say, which may range from a slight to a severe degree. After affections accompanied by fever, such as influenza and other acute conditions, the hair may begin to fall for two or three months, and then, within a month or two, one-half or two-thirds of the hair may fall out. When caused by a gradual loss of nerve tone subsequent to worry or prolonged emotional excitement, the fall of hair is less rapid but more persistent.

SCALP TENDERNESS

In uncomplicated cases there is no evidence of inflammation. The hair and scalp are usually dry, but in some instances they may be excessively oily. The patient may complain of pain or tenderness when the scalp is felt or the hair is brushed. At times this symptom is so marked that the patient cannot tolerate even slight pressure on the scalp.

One of the principal diagnostic symptoms, according to the physicians, is that the hair falls out equally over the entire scalp—there are no sites of predilection. Very frequently the hair lacks lustre; it is dry, brittle and breaks off. In fact, the splitting and breaking of the hair may be the chief symptoms, especially in loss of hair due to nervous affections. While at times the scalp may be congested, it is usually rather pale.

The prognosis depends upon the causes, the authors assert. Often subsequent to acute systemic conditions the prognosis is excellent, even without treatment. When associated with chronic systemic conditions the prognosis is favorable if the patient receives adequate treatment. If the loss of hair and the systemic condition have existed for several years, a guarded prognosis should be given.

In idiopathic alopecia there is a gradual loss of hair without discernible cause. The physicians say that in this form of the affection the hair not only falls out, but it ceases to grow. In a large percentage of cases there is a family history of baldness. Without a family history of alopecia it is possible that a patient with idiopothic baldness is the first member of a family tree. The affection seems to be more common in males than in females. It usually begins in late adolescent or early adult life. Baldness may be complete in from three to five years, or not for ten to twenty.

The local symptoms are characteristic, the authors assert. If uncomplicated, there is no evidence of disease of the scalp. There is a gradual thinning of the hair in the region of the temples and on the crown of the head. Later the hair is thinned over the entire top of the scalp. For a while lanugo (downy or fluffy) hair continues to grow and some large hairs persist, but eventually the top of the scalp is denuded. The hair below the sides and crown regions remains unaffected, as a rule.

The prognosis, the physicians declare, is almost hopeless. As a rule the most that can be accomplished by treatment is to delay the process and to stimulate the growth of the fine, fluffy lanugo hair. Occasionally, they assert, an unexpected and brilliant result is obtained in early cases.

Alopecia seborrhoeica is caused directly or indirectly by inflammation of the skin in which the sebaceous or oily glands are situated, and, in the opinion of the authors, this inflammation is undoubtedly a bacterial or parasitic affection. They conclude, therefore, that this form of loss of hair is a contagious bacterial affection. It is an exceedingly common affection in both males and females, the physicians say.

They describe a classical case: It begins in late adolescent life (or at any time of life) as dry dandruff, with perhaps some itching. The hair may or may not fall; usually there is little if any loss of hair during the first stage. After a few months or a few years, usually the latter, the scales become waxy and heavy. They do not fall on the coat collar, but adhere loosely to the scalp or to the hair.

Patients at the beginning of this stage think they are improving because the dandruff is no longer conspicuous. As a rule the hair begins to fall at the end of the first stage or at the beginning of the second stage. At first new hair grows almost as fast as old hair falls, but sooner or later there is a noticeable thinning which is usually, but not always, first manifested over the region of the temples and the crown of the head.

The third stage is described as developing insidiously, after an interval which ranges from several months to as many years. In this stage, scaling off of the scalp is overlooked, unless the scalp is carefully examined. The dandruff, macerated in oil, is but a waxy or oily deposit on the scalp. By this time there is a paucity of hair all over the scalp above the sides and back of the head and there is little tendency for new hair to grow.

During the first stage, according to the authors, the hair is dry and it may be brittle and lustreless. In the second stage it may be dry, but is more likely to be oily. Toward the end of the second stage and in the third stage the hair becomes excessively oily two or three days after washing. In spite of the oil, however, the hair may split and break off, in addition to falling out.

There may be more or less redness of the scalp. Also the converse may be true—the scalp may be pale. The three stages may be of about equal duration or any one stage may be greatly lengthened or shortened. The disease may never progress beyond the first or second stage, we are assured; it may begin as the second or third stage—which is not so reassuring—or antecedent stages may have been transient or overlooked. These are important facts and must be kept in mind while making a differential diagnosis.

A CAUTIOUS PROGNOSIS

The prognosis, we are told, depends upon the stage and rapidity of evolution. In the first stage it is excellent. It is good, but must be guarded, in the second stage. In the third stage the prognosis is unfavorable. If the disease has resulted in atrophy or baldness, the hair will never return.

There are two other varieties of alopecia, alopecia senilis and alopecia aresta. Alopecia senilis, as the name implies, is partial or complete baldness due to normal or premature senility. The scalp shows no evidence of disease, although it may be congested. It is more likely to be pale and shiny. The loss of hair is usually equally distributed over the scalp, especially at the sides and back of the head. The affection is slowly progressive and the prognosis is unfavorable.

Alopecia areata is a peculiar affection the origin of which is in dispute, but the consensus of opinion is that it is caused by a nerve lesion of some kind.

The picture presented by the authors is that of a sudden and complete loss of hair, in one day or one night, from an area the size of a dime or a silver dollar. There may be but one patch or there may be several patches. The entire scalp may be denuded (alopecia totalis), or the entire body (alopecia universalis). The disease affects persons of all ages.

In mild cases, with one or a few patches, the prognosis is good, the physicians say. In more extensive cases the prognosis should be guarded. In alopecia totalis and alopecia universalis the prognosis is bad, but there are numerous instances of complete and spontaneous restoration of hair.

Almost any combination of types may occur, so that it must be evident that it is practically impossible to devise a universal hair restorer. It is equally evident that a correct diagnosis must be made and remedies which experience has taught to be of value applied. The authors name a long list of drugs which are of use in the different types named—stimulants, antiseptics and a class of drugs called keratolytics, which are seldom used. Electrotherapy, massage, and hygienic measures are also aids in the treatment.

Dr. William H. Fitz Gerald of Hartford, Conn., in reporting the results of zone or pressure therapy in American Medicine says that rubbing the finger nails of one hand against those of the other, including the thumb nails, very briskly for two or three minutes a few times daily will cause the scalp to tighten and thus decrease or stop altogether the fall of hair.

A Friendly Word For China

Says The Times of Malaya: Dr. Samuel Johnson wrote: "Lend observation that extensive view, Survey mankind from China to Peru; Remark each anxious toil, each eager strife, and watch the busy scenes of crowded life." Whereas the first two of these lines are often quoted, it is much to be feared that critics in Europe and America do not take into account the "anxious toil" of Chinese statesmen on behalf of China's "crowded life." Few people who talk of Chinese affairs realise the magnitude of the country we know as China. Compared with the United States, possessing a continental area of 2,973,890 sq. miles and a population of 105,000,000, China (including Manchuria, Mongolia, Tibet, and Eastern Turkestan) has an area of 4,287,000 sq. miles and a population of 421,000,000. Naturally, in such a large area and with such an immense population there are differences of opinion, which sometimes become acrimonious. But Chinese statesmen are earnestly, and we think successfully, endeavoring to serve the whole interests of this vast country, and it must be confessed that since the revolution which broke out in Hankow in October, 1911, and which finally resulted in the deposition of the Manchu dynasty in February of the following year, China has done marvellous things. It is not fair, to the exclusion of all achievement, to look only at the troubles which have beset the young Republic and which are inevitable in such a momentous change of Government. Due regard and importance should certainly be given to the progress which has been accomplished. The Chinese Empire has not fallen to pieces, and Chinese statesmen have shown themselves capable and willing to preserve it intact. In the best sense of the word they are working industriously and intelligently for its unification. They are not aggressive. They want peace with the whole world, but, as is only to be expected, they cannot buy it at the cost of either territory or independence. In that respect and in her desire for peace and the extension of commercial relationship, China must command the respect and the sympathy of all countries and all men who love freedom, peace, and prosperity which is not purchased at the expense and impoverishment of other nations.

Volunteer Corps Notes

Last Sunday was a busy morning on the Range. No less than 3 units were hard at work there. The Engineers were putting great energy into the construction of the new B. F. course near the 400 yards shelter. The Machine Gun Company were busy with two Machine guns and the armoured car putting in a lot of useful musketry instruction in all the weapons with which the unit is armed. Lastly the Shanghai Scottish Company Commander was putting some of his men through Part II of the A. M. C.

It was a great pleasure to the Commandant to see all these units so busy and the thoroughly practical manner in which they were all working. It was also a very good instance of the immense value of the available resources of the Range, a sight which it is hoped, will often be seen in the future, substituting instruction in bayonet fighting for construction work. The 'Sappers' will, nevertheless, still have a considerable piece of ground available for exercising their constructive genius, so we may even go one better and have five units all doing different forms of training at the Range at the same time.

MACHINE GUN COMPANY

The Machine Gun Company played the Portuguese Company in the S. V. C. "Soccer" League on Sunday last and succeeded in recording a comfortable win. Next Sunday afternoon they play the Customs Company in the semi-final and it is hoped that as many members of the Unit as possible will turn out on the touch line to support the team.

During the past week a definite promise has been obtained from the New Engineering Works for the delivery of two more armoured cars in time for the Company Camp next month, and the complete fleet of six will be ready in time for the annual inspection of the Corps.

On Monday next the Company Commander is giving a lecture on the future organisation of the company, in view of the advent of the armoured cars, and as this is a matter of considerable importance to all members a large attendance is to be desired.

Last Sunday morning the second short range gun practice was held, and again very satisfactory standards of efficiency were displayed. The most interesting event of the morning was a broken fusee chain—a very unusual breakdown—but thanks to the prompt and energetic efforts of the Company Sergeant Major the gun was again in action within a very few minutes.

FIELD ARTILLERY

The postponement of the point-to-point race fixed for Sunday last was rather disappointing to the gunners, but the country was quite impossible. It will probably be held next Sunday week.

On Sunday the three sections of the Battery will operate independently under their respective officers, muster at the gunshed at 9 a.m., drill order. The battery signals will move off in their lorry at 9.15 for field work. This parade will count towards the Efficiency Trophy.

A reorganisation of the signal section has now been effected that promises well for the section and that will be a great aid to better battery staff work. It can no longer be described as merely a signal section, as its duties now embrace range-taking, field plotting and director work, and a knowledge of gunnery that will enable it to co-operate more closely and intelligently with the man behind the gun and the actual observation officer. Promotion may now be made from signals to guns and vice versa if necessary, the signals being designated E Subsection. Interesting lectures are being given at the S. V. C. Lecture Hall, H. Q., on Mondays at 9 p.m. which other members of the Battery would find well worth attending.

Old members of the unit may regret the change in designation from Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 guns to A. B. C. and D Subsections. It will, however, obviate a great deal of the uncertainty prevailing when subsections change positions in maneuvre, and will bring the guns into line with modern artillery custom.

Five gunlayers were passed out last month and are entitled to wear the badge for one year. Another examination in gunlaying will be announced shortly.

Appointments to sections in last month's orders assign Lieut. Hay to the Right Section, Lieut. Holland to the Left, and 2nd-Lieut. Lobb to Battery Signals.

"B" CO., BRITISH

The Test Mobilization took place at 9 p.m. on Tuesday, February 7th. The final figures have not yet been worked out but will be published in the next Unit order.

The next weekly parade will take place at the Drill Hall, Foochow Road, Tuesday, February 14 at 5.45 p.m. This will be one of the stated parades for Unit efficiency and all ranks are to attend. Dress: Uniform, except in the cases of those men who have not yet drawn winter uniform. Section Commanders will please advise their men of this parade.

Men not yet in possession of uniform, and who have been measured are to report to the Corps tailor without delay as there are numerous suits of uniform waiting to be tried on.

The Monthly Cup shoot for February will take place at the Rifle Range on Friday, 24th instant, 6 to 8.30 a.m. only. Ranges, etc. will be announced later.

SHANGHAI SCOTTISH CO.

All but recruits and recently joined members have now fired the Trained Man's Course and the results are quite satisfactory.

On Sunday last the company had tiffin on the Range which proved to be a mostly successful function. In the afternoon the February Monthly Cup Competitions took place and forty one members competed, the largest number this year.

The next parade, which is ordered for February 21 will be an efficiency one, and special attention will be paid to street fighting and march discipline.

As the training season progresses, it may be stated that the year has been one full of interest to the company. Everything has been done to make the company efficient and at the same time retain the keenness of the men.

Slackness has received no encouragement and the Unit has a record of which it may be justly proud.

Corps Sergeant Major D. Leighton has rendered invaluable assistance to the unit, his instruction in guard mounting last Tuesday being thoroughly appreciated.

BRITISH INFANTRY RESERVES

The annual service meeting is to be held on Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning the 11th and 12th instant. Tiffin will be served at the Range at the conclusion of the Sunday morning's shooting. These unit annual service meetings are specially arranged to provide the opportunity of firing the annual muketry course. The program for the meeting is comprised of classification Practices Nos. 10, 17 of the Musketry Course, Part II. In order to embrace this opportunity of firing the Musketry Course it is not necessary for members of the unit to enter for the service meeting but it is hoped, however, all those intending to shoot this week-end will enter for the meeting. Entries will be received up to 2 p.m. on Saturday afternoon when firing commences.

Members of the unit prevented from attending the range on Saturday afternoon but able to be present on Sunday morning are reminded that they can shoot part of the course, and the remainder at a later date which will be arranged for.

American Co. Starts Unique Campaign Of Recruiting

The American Company has just inaugurated a recruiting campaign which will be conducted on different lines from any previous effort. It is first of all an effort to get new members, but in the second place the aim is to place clearly before the American community the fact that the American Company is not a fair representation of the group of Americans now resident in Shanghai.

A member of the American Company of an accounting mind has set down in the form of debits and credits the disadvantages (if they may be so-called) and advantages of serving an enlistment with the Company as follows:

AN ENLISTMENT IN THE AMERICAN COMPANY, S.V.C.

Debits

Enlist for three years, though departure from Shanghai before the end of this period entitles member to honorable discharge providing service has been satisfactory.

Agree to attend 17 drills yearly and fire the musketry course as laid down, failing which (except in the event of illness or absence from Shanghai on leave) you will pay to the S.V.C. the sum of $7.00 for each year's non-efficient.

Pay dues of $1.00 a month to the Company Treasurer, all of which (and more besides) is expended on the company activities.

Credits

Provides you with tailor made uniform (U. S. Army style) and equipment sufficient for any service we are likely to have in Shanghai.

An excellent Drill Hall.

A rifle range, with permanent staff, which cannot be surpassed anywhere—ask any man who has had to go through "pit-detail" on a home-side range—including a splended revolver range, and in the future a bayonet fighting course.

An Armoury, where a well qualified armourer will make any necessary repairs or adjustments to your rifle.

A Lecture Hall, which is also available for Company meetings, etc.

An Orderly Room, equipped to handle your S.V.C. business in a military manner.

An interesting Miniature Range, indoors, for instruction and for competitions (now nearing completion).

A Corps Annual Rifle Meeting, with an extensive prize list and a classification so that every man has an equal opportunity.

A Company Camp, for three days in September of each year.

A Company Rifle Meeting.

Various prizes for excellence in Manual of Arms, etc.

An unequalled opportunity for promotion to non-commissioned or commissioned rank.

The opportunity to join the Shanghai Rifle Association (membership in which is limited to members of the Defence Forces) and the use of a Springfield Rifle and 60 rounds of ammunition per mensem.

A Silver "Long Service Medal" for twelve years efficient service in any active unit, not necessarily continuous service.

And in the near future, a Gymnasium, well equipped, with dressing room and shower baths attached, furnished rooms and military library.

Unknown London

FURTHER QUEST OF THE HISTORICALLY QUAINT

Walter George Bell's volume of essays on "Unknown London," which deat with little-known historical places and customs of that great city, is now followed by "More About Unknown London" (John Lane company, New York; $2). In this second volume the author continues his meandering searches for the historically obscure of London.

This is by no means a Baedeker for the average tourist, who can spare time only for the "high spots." It is meant rather for those who wish to link up their history with actual first-hand historical spots, and who enjoy nosing out the medieval customs still existing in the midst of that great city. It is the type of book which makes one anxious to follow up the reading by pilgrimages to the places described therein.

This Mr. Bell makes it easy for us to do by the exactness with which he gives directions to "walk down to this square, turn left into that, and walk north," etc. Thus armed few of us "with the courage of our convictions could miss the way to the old printing house, where modern machinery is still taboo, or to the site of the ancient scaffold, where have been severed the heads of so many of England's famous, among them Sir Thomas Moore, Anne Boleyn and the Scottish chieftain, Simeon Fraser, Lord Lovat."

Certain of the essays, such as "An Election of Sheriffs" and "London Our Bounds," are to the usual reader revelations of the medieval customs which are a hangover into modern times. "Cries of Old London" transports us bodily into the medieval city itself. It is with a sigh almost of bewilderment that we look up from the last page to hear the whine of the vacuum cleaner in the adjoining room, rather than the cry of:—

Swepe, chimney-swepe! Swepe, chimney-swepe!
From the bottom to the top, chimney swepe!
Then shall no scote fall in your porridge-pot!
Swe-e-epe!

Mr. Bell himself insists upon his "discursiveness." He says: "'Why don't you write a book upon London?' I have been asked. I am wholly incorrigible. Not for me are the encyclopaedists. I wrote a book upon a single street in London once—to be exact, upon the 536 yards of Fleet street that you may measure between Ludgate Circus and Temple Bar—and a truthful reviewer accused me of writing a quarter of a million words." He later states: "This book has been put together at odd times, as recreation in intervals of more substantial work. It is without plan, disjointed, disconnected; as London itself is, without any particular period of time or mood."

Indeed, the author does ramble in style as in subject, often digressing to give us bits of confidential gossip about characters and places. But why not? Properly to enjoy such a scitch through London one must be in both a discursive and digressing mood.

Mr. Bell's illustrations must not be forgotten. Scattered liberally throughout the book are photographs, old drawings and prints, which aid the reader greatly in visualising the medieval personages and scenes, and which in themselves supply additional interest and charm.

Anti-Fog Machine Is London's Hope

The Medical Supply Association of London, who supply the medical profession with X-ray and electro-medical gear, are eagerly awaiting London's next "pea-soup" fog to continue their experiments with a "fog-dispelling" machine.

The "fog-dispeller" is not a new invention, but is an ordinary static electrical machine used for high tension treatments by doctors. The model used for the experiments is a substantial glass cabinet in which revolve sixteen large glass plates side by side. In front of the cabinet are two adjustable brass balls.

The glass plates are revolved at high speed with the aid of a small one-horsepower motor, and, if the brass balls are close enough together a current of 200,000 volts is discharged between them like a streak of forked lightning.

By drawing the balls apart the current is unable to burn its way through the air gap between them, and is forced to discharge into the atmosphere.

The effect of so electrically charging the air is to attract particles of dirt and dust to the machine. The association's showroom has been cleared of smoke in a few minutes by this means.

In an experiment, when the fog was at its thickest a number of bright balls and sheets of metal were hung around the machine. The doors of the showroom were opened, and the current switched on. In fifteen minutes the hanging articles were black with fog particles; and electric bulbs and furniture in the showroom were smothered with dirt. At the same time the fog outside the building began to clear!

"Whether it was mere coincidence or not we are scarcely ready to say," said a demonstrator to a press representative.

Notes And Jottings From The Chinese Press

The Cabinet has instructed the three delegates to the Disarmament Conference, Alfred Sze, Wellington Koo and Wang Chung-hui, to return to Peking immediately to report on the conference.

The Ministry of Communications has requested the Ministry of Interior to inform it of the exact date when the newly trained Chinese constabulary for service along the Shantung Railway in place of the Japanese Gendarmes will be available. Under the Washington arrangement just concluded, Japan will withdraw their military police as soon as the Chinese constables are ready for service.

A Presidential Mandate under date of February 8 appointed Admiral Tsai Ting-kai, chief of the commission for the revision of the tariff rates, which will sit in Shanghai soon. Admiral Tsai served as one of the advisors to the Chinese Delegation at Washington and was one of the members on the commission which revised the Chinese customs tariff in 1918.

A special section for the handling of overseas affairs has been created by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs. Chinese consulates in foreign countries have been instructed to refer all matters concerning Chinese abroad to this section direct.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen as Generalissimo of the Southern Army has ordered the main body of his expeditionary troops to concentrate at Hungyang, Hunan.

Li Hao-chi, Tuchun of Fukien, has pledged the payment of $1,000,000 for the redemption of the Shantung Railway.

Despite the failure of the stock exchanges in Shanghai, the officials and gentry of the three Manchurian provinces have established another exchange at Harbin capitalised at $5,000,000.

According to a telegram from Hu Wei-teh, Chinese Minister to Tokio, General Joffre is due to arrive in Mukden on February 25. The central government has delegated Tang Pao-chao and Wang Ting-chiang to welcome the French hero in the Manchurian capital.

(Rosta News Agency)

Moscow, February 5.—London reports that the English Labor Party jointly with the French and Italian socialist parties has invited all the labor and socialist parties of England, Italy, Germany, Belgium and France to attend a conference to be held this month in Paris. THOS. H. INCE Presents
WILLIAM S. HART
IN
"The Poppy Girl's Husband"

With eyes that burned with hate and loathing he crept through the jimmied door of the apartment and in upon his beautiful, unsuspecting, erstwhile wife. He had determined to wreak upon her the most terrible vengeance that his cunning, criminal brain could conceive because she had committed the one unpardonable sin of his exclusive underworld clique.

Yet, when he left the room he left her unscarred and unharmed. His former love for her did not overcome his hate and loathing. His desire for revenge raged just as strong as before. Then what changed the mind of the arch-criminal? It's almost inexplicable. You'll have to see it to realize how real and thrilling this situation has been made.
